Radical cleric Hamza found guilty of terror charges

HATE preacher Abu Hamza faces life in a maximum security prison after being found guilty of a string of terrorism offences.

The radical cleric, 56, was convicted of 11 charges at a New York court on Monday, including recruiting and indoctrinating young men at Finsbury Park Mosque.

The hook-handed preacher started preaching at the mosque, in St Thomas' Road, in the late 1990s.

He shot to prominence after praising Osama bin Laden following the September 11, 2001, attacks in America.

In 2002, Hamza was suspended from his position as imam at the mosque by the Charity Commission due to his radical views.

But the cleric continued unabated, and in 2003 he was famously seen preaching in the street after the mosque was closed following a raid by armed police in connection with an attempted ricin attack in London in 2002.

The mosque was reclaimed by the Muslim Association of Britain in 2005.

Hamza, who was born in Egypt and came to the UK to study in 1979, lost his hands and an eye in a bomb blast in Pakistan in 1993.

Following a five-week trial in the US he was convicted of 11 charges, including helping to take 16 tourists hostage in Yemen in 1998 when three Britons and an Australian were killed.

He was also found guilty of backing Al Qaeda in Afghanistan by sending money and recruits and of trying to set up a training camp in Oregon, in the US, in 1999.

Hamza was jailed for seven years at the Old Bailey in 2006 for inciting murder and race hate and extradited to the US in 2012 after a long legal fight.

Guilty: Abu Hamza

QUARTET HOPE IT IS INDEPENDENTS' DAY

● FORTIS Green councillor Matt Davies is hoping to retain his seat on Haringey Council as an independent candidate.

Mr Davies, who was elected as a Liberal Democrat in the last election in 2010, left the party at the end of the year in protest its endorsement of student tuition fees.

Now after representing the ward for 12 years, the last three-and-a-half as an independent, he hopes the electorate will have the faith to return him to office.

"I've carried on doing my job as a ward councillor," Mr Davies, above, told the Advertiser.

"I've been able to help hundreds of residents for the last 12 years as a councillor and now I don't have to worry about a party line. I can do a better job.

"Lots of residents have asked me to stand again, some specifically because I was not in a party. I vote for whatever is the best proposal on the table, in some cases with the Lib Dems or Labour or my own."

Mr Davies, who has distributed leaflets to the 5,000 households in the ward, which includes parts of Muswell Hill, says the main issues for the area include keeping the shopping hub vibrant.

"Parking is always an issue," said the 37-year-old charity campaigner, "as well as keeping green spaces and road safety. Across the borough, child protection and caring for the vulnerable and elderly are wider issues.

"I can help with individual issues, planning applications, waste and recycling.

"Hopefully, people I have helped will come out and vote for me."

● PAULINE Gibson is hoping to be elected for a second term in Noel Park ward, which she has represented since 2010.

But this time she is standing as an independent in the Labour stronghold, having previously represented the party in the central Haringey ward.

Ms Gibson, right, pledged: "My policy is to be of service to people, as I have done for the last four years."

She said she had been "unfairly deselected" by the Labour Party and will face only one of her former colleagues in her bid to be re-elected – Alan Strickland – as James Stewart is not standing again.

She said: "I was pleased to serve the people of Noel Park as one of their elected Labour councillors from 2010 to 2014 and I thank everyone who voted for me. In this year's election I am an independent candidate because I have been unfairly deselected by the Labour Party.

"I shall be pleased to serve the people of Noel Park and Haringey again. I offer myself for re-election as a sincere and kind woman who knows that the struggles are real."

● A COUNCILLOR, who resigned from the Liberal Democrats three years ago because they "would not listen", is standing for re-election as an independent candidate.

Lyn Weber feels that because she is not affiliated to any political party, she is better placed to represent her constituents in Crouch End.

"For the past three years I have not had to worry about national politics and trying to fit in with that," she told the Advertiser. "I have been able to focus exclusively on working with residents, the residents' association and lots and lots of groups.

"I have been involved with parking issues, the bedroom tax and housing issues."

The long-standing councillor, right, who is hoping to be re-elected for a third term, is battling on many fronts to hold the council to account.

She said: "I left the Liberal Democrats on Haringey Council as there was a meeting about fortnightly bin collections and the Lib Dems wanted to rubber-stamp a campaign against it.

"I had prepared a speech because I knew the arguments, I knew what Veolia were doing, I knew about the pressure being put on landfill sites. But they would not listen. I have continued to campaign on environmental issues."

Ms Weber has consistently lobbied police about people begging on the pavement outside supermarkets in The Broadway.

"I was contacted by residents who felt uncomfortable walking past people who were begging in the street," she explained.

"I contacted the safer neighbourhood teams about it and contacted social services to try and get help for those who were homeless."

● BEE Adan will be up against 14 other candidates in Labour-dominated Woodside.

The ward has been controlled by the party for many years and Patrick Egan, George Meehan and Ann Waters are all standing for re-election.

The Advertiser was unable to contact the electoral hopeful ahead of polling day.

Simon Heale, inset, will be among 18,000 runners tackling the Comrades Marathon on June 1 in a bid to raise £10,000. Runners have 12 hours to complete the testing course and must reach various checkpoints in a certain time or be eliminated.

Mr Heale has raised more than £2,600 for the Tottenham-based theatre, which offers inclusive performing arts for the young people of Haringey whatever their abilities, disabilities or backgrounds.

Sajda is shortlisted

A LEADER from a Haringey women's charity has been included on the shortlist for the 2014 Asian Women of Achievement Award.

Sajda Mughal, who narrowly escaped injury during the terrorist attacks in London on July 7, 2005, has been nominated for her work as a project director with the JAN Trust, based in Bedford Road, Wood Green, which helps and educates disadvantaged women and girls in Haringey.

It is the latest recognition for the charity, whose founder Rafaat Mughal received an OBE in the New Year Honours list.

Arrested Tory hopeful was benefit fraudster

Falsely claimed £30,000 from council during student days

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A CONSERVATIVE candidate arrested on suspicion of an electoral offence once cheated the council out of £30,000 in benefits.

Michael Fadaka, 33, of Bedale Road, Enfield, received a 12-month suspended prison term in 2011 after falsely claiming £30,000 of housing benefit and income support while he was a student.

He had been selected by the local Conservative party to stand as a candidate in Enfield Lock.

However, under the Local Government Act 1972 a person is barred from standing as a council candidate if they have been given a jail term of three months or more, whether suspended or not, within five years of an election.

When the Enfield North Conservative Association was told that there was a problem with Mr Fadaka's application

Detained: Michael Fadaka, who had been selected to stand for the Conservatives in Enfield Lock, was arrested last week on suspicion of an electoral offence and released on police bail by the council's electoral officers, who carry out criminal record checks on every single council candidate, it suspended him immediately.

Fadaka was arrested on suspicion of committing an electoral offence last week and was released on police bail until June.

His name will still appear on tomorrow's ballot papers.

Make sure that you are not out for the count...

To get the latest on the local election, keep an eye on our website www.enfield-today.co.uk where our team will be reporting live from the count being held at Lee Valley Athletics Centre tomorrow night and in the early hours of Friday morning.

Voters will also pick who goes to Brussels

AS well as electing whom we are going to put in charge of the council for the next four years, tomorrow Londoners will be going to the polls to choose who speaks up for them in Europe.

In addition to deciding who will sit on Enfield Council, voters will be deciding on the members of the European Parliament.

MEPs sit in the parliament in Brussels, and in Strasbourg four times a year, voting for laws in the areas Europe controls – trade, environmental matters, consumer protection and employment.

MEPs are elected through a form of proportional representation – the closed party list, which means that the electorate votes for the party rather than an individual candidate.

Londoners will elect eight MEPs who will represent the capital in the parliament.

Polling surveys carried out over the past few months have shown that UKIP, who believe that Britain should not be in the EU, could do extremely well despite recent controversies.

They include Enfield Council candidate William Henwood, who resigned from the party after being caught out for tweeting earlier this year that comedian Lenny Henry should emigrate to a "black country".

Cameron promises funds for primary care after hospital services removed

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE Prime Minister has insisted there will be financial investment in primary care in Enfield to compensate for the loss of vital front-line hospital services in the borough.

The closure of the maternity and accident and emergency units at Chase Farm Hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, without many of the promised primary care provisions being put in place, has left residents in the borough furious with the Conservatives in government, who once promised to stop any downgrade of the hospital.

Speaking exclusively to the Advertiser before tomorrow's local and European elections, David Cameron said: "More money is going into primary care in Enfield, as in the rest of London."

"(The decision to downgrade the hospital) was a clinician-led decision and that came to a very clear conclusion."

Talking quietly in a dimly-lit basement room in the west London headquarters of Hammer-smith Conservative Association, Mr Cameron continued: "But I think what matters now is making a success of what we have at Chase Farm."

"Nick de Bois [the Conservative Enfield North MP] has been working very hard to make sure that happens."

"Specifically, you've now got the proposed merger making the hospital part of the Royal Free. It is an excellent hospital and is planning to put new buildings and facilities at Chase Farm," insisted the Prime Minister.

Mr Cameron added that the plans to increase GPs' hours across the country would help fill the void left by the closure of the A&E department.

In Enfield, the Conservatives face trying to replace a Labour-led administration which has pressed ahead with regeneration schemes, kept libraries and leisure centres open and promoted the protection of child and youth services.

"The reason that Enfield Council has been

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

Give him five: David Cameron visited Woodpecker Hall Primary Academy in Edmonton in July 2012 to announce the expansion of the government's free school programme able to keep those things is because government funding is above the national average in the country," explained Mr Cameron.

"Enfield could do more in terms of cost savings which enables you to keep services and to reduce the council tax."

Mr Cameron last visited the borough in July 2012 when he went to Woodpecker Hall Primary Academy, in Cuckoo Hall Lane, Edmonton.

That visit was to announce the expansion of the free school programme.

He chose the school specifically as its sister school, Cuckoo Hall Academy, had been lauded repeatedly by Education Secretary Michael Gove, who hailed the executive headteacher Patricia Sowter as being "better than the council" at running schools.

However, the latest results have revealed that examination grades have dropped dramatically.

From 86 per cent of children achieving a level 4 in the SATs exams in 2012, the figure fell to 54 per cent for 2013 – six percentage points below the government target of 60 per cent.

If this sudden drop can happen in a free school hailed as a flagship example of the scheme, was that indicative of the failing of the Conservatives' pet project?

"If you take free schools as a whole, two-thirds of them are ranked as good by Ofsted," responded Mr Cameron. "You shouldn't take the results in one school as an indicator of the whole programme."

"You see in free schools where there are problems there's been very rapid intervention and turnaround whereas, tragically, in the state sector some schools have been left failing for a very long time."

Home Secretary in favour of tougher measures on people caught with knife

HOME Secretary Theresa May has backed a new law which proposes that adults convicted for possessing a knife for a second time serve a mandatory jail term.

Mrs May was speaking during a visit to the borough on Monday.

She was joined by Enfield North MP Nick de Bois, Enfield Southgate MP David Burrowes and Enfield Council's Conservative group leader Michael Lavender while she visited traders in Hertford Road, Enfield Lock.

The Home Secretary also met Yvonne Lawson, whose son Godwin, 17, died in 2010 when he was stabbed in Amhurst Park, Stamford Hill.

Since her son's death, Mrs Lawson has worked to eradicate knife crime in Enfield through the Godwin Lawson Foundation.

Mrs Lawson is in favour of toughening up the sentencing regime and supports an amendment to the Criminal Courts and Justice Bill, currently going through Parliament, that will introduce a mandatory six-month prison sentence for adults convicted of possessing a knife for a second time.

The amendment, which has been tabled by Mr de Bois and Mr Burrowes, also contains a second clause which will introduce a four-month detention and training order for 16 to 18-year-olds convicted for a second time.

Confirming her backing for the proposed legislation while at the Silver Service coffee shop, in Hertford Road, Mrs May said: "Young people need to understand the consequences they will face if they carry knives. Sending a clear signal is very important."

Mrs Lawson added: "We have to make clear the consequences of carrying a knife because this means you can actually take a life."

Let's get tough: Home Secretary Theresa May is addressed by anti-knife crime campaigner Yvonne Lawson

"A lot of young people seem to think that the law is lenient and that carrying a knife won't have a serious consequence."

Mrs Lawson also believes funding for early intervention schemes should be increased.

She said: "My foundation works to prevent young people getting into knife crime in the first place, but we have no funding."

"More should be spent on grass-roots charities who go out and talk to the youth and speak to parents."

Mrs May acknowledged this, adding: "Over the last years we have put extra funding into early intervention. We have our Ending Gang and Youth Violence Programme, which was put together after the riots."

"It is important to work with people who are affected by knife crime and who are doing something positive about their tragedy."

MPs will vote on the bill next month.

Florist tells of break-in woes after her seventh burglary in 14 years

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A FLORIST in Freezywater received a visit from Theresa May on Monday, just a week after the shop was burgled for the seventh time in 14 years.

The Home Secretary had been invited to meet the owners of Everitt Florist, in Hertford Road, by Enfield North MP Nick de Bois.

He wanted Mrs May, who has governmental responsibility for policing, to witness the difficulties some traders face as a result of crime.

Speaking after the visit, Anne-Marie Pinnock, who runs the florist's with husband Dean Partridge, said: "This was the seventh time we've been burgled since 2000. The police come round after every burglary, but we never hear anything back."

The shop was broken into during the early hours of May 9 and a laptop computer, a number of teddy bears, china pots and around £80 in cash were taken.

The shop's side window, back door and some pots were badly damaged.

Mr Partridge added: "On Valentine's Day and Mother's Day, we have to sleep in the shop, just to protect it from burglars – we would lose too much if we got broken into on those days. This time they ransacked the place.

"The problem is that the insurance has gone through the roof and we feel we get no support."

Mr de Bois said he was concerned that crime is harming many small businesses.

The Conservative MP told the Advertiser: "I thought it was important for Theresa to see what challenges businesses on small high streets are facing and I think she took on board the point about the importance of visible policing."

A spokeswoman for Enfield Police said: "We have a comprehensive burglary reduction plan. Daily patrols are conducted using predictive crime mapping tools and any intelligence relating to burglary is actioned as a priority."

"Police have strong links with the Enfield Businesses and Retailers' Association and are looking to developing new ways of working with businesses in order to jointly reduce crime."

Doctor makes hospital visit on European election tour

Health visitor: Dr Louise Irvine was at Chase Farm during a tour of the capital's hospitals

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A PROLIFIC health campaigner, who is standing in tomorrow's election for the European Parliament, visited Chase Farm as part of a tour of London hospitals.

Dr Louise Irvine, who is a London candidate for the National Health Action Party, took the party's campaign message around nine of the capital's hospitals, including Chase Farm, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, and the Royal Free, in Hampstead, which is set to take over the running of the Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals NHS Trust in July.

Dr Irvine, a GP in Lewisham, south-east London, is the chairwoman of the Save Lewisham Hospital Campaign, which successfully fought against the proposed downgrade of that hospital last year.

She told the Advertiser during last Tuesday's visit: "The party was formed by health professionals in 2012 in response to the government's Health and Social Care Act, which has led to a creeping privatisation of the service.

"We feel that the Labour Party, which introduced private provision of clinical services, is not doing enough.

"In Enfield, residents have experienced the loss of the accident and emergency unit at Chase Farm, which has led to pressure on A&E departments and beds at North Mid and longer waiting times.

"Ultimately, the downgrade represents the destruction of Chase Farm as a district general hospital. By not funding hospitals properly the government has created a crisis. The need to make savings at a time of population growth and with an ageing population is destructive.

"There is also a lack of investment in primary care, there have been cuts to district nurses and cuts to social care. Patients are experiencing a worsening service and the government's view is that if it is failing it needs to be privatised.

"Already many services are being provided by the private sector – but those firms are there to make profit and will cut staff costs, which leads to worse care."

The National Health Action Party is fielding eight candidates in the Euro elections and will contest three council seats in the capital, including one in Enfield Town where Save Chase Farm campaigner and former Enfield councillor Kieran McGregor is standing.

The party says spending on healthcare needs to be increased by four per cent every year just to keep up with demand.

Asked how the government could afford this, Dr Irvine said: "There is money in the NHS, but it is not being spent properly. Costly PFI deals must be renegotiated. That would save a lot – and the government should stop wasting money on reorganisations.

"Privatisation is costly because you spend a lot of money on consultants and legal costs. It's much cheaper to provide a universal state service. Just look at the US, which has a private system but which spends twice as much."

Asked about how she feels her party's message is being received, she added: "I am struck by how little people know about what is happening to our health service. It is important that we get the message out."

Judge delays verdict on bid to evict Cat Hill protesters

By Daniel O'Brien

daniel.obrien@nlhnews.co.uk

ENVIRONMENTAL activists facing eviction from the Cat Hill housing development told a judge last week that they were there to observe and record "law breaking" by developers.

Appearing at Barnet County Court on Thursday, the occupiers, who set up camp at the former Middlesex University campus in Cockfosters last month, convinced Deputy District Judge Kenneth Arnold to delay his decision on a possession order requested by housing association London and Quadrant.

L&Q had its application to build a 231-home housing development on the site approved in March last year despite a hard-fought campaign by residents, leading to the first application being rejected by Enfield Council in 2012.

The activists, who are members of the same group that successfully reopened the axed Friern Barnet Library in 2012, have formed an alliance with members of the Save Cat Hill campaign.

When work on the development began in February, residents first formed a blockade to stop trucks and other vehicles entering the site before establishing a permanent protest on a grass verge outside the site, which has since been boosted by the occupiers.

Representing the company in court, barrister Sam Phillips told the judge: "The occupiers represent a health and safety risk to the continuing work that is being undertaken."

"There is no legal right or licence to remain and their presence there is creating significant financial risk if the works are delayed on the property."

However, speaking for the occupiers, Donovan Volk denied their presence presented any risk, pointing out they had their set up camp in a protected wooded area, which the developers are prohibited from reaching or developing.

Awaiting their fate: The Cat Hill housing development site occupiers

Mr Volk said that the squatters were responding to "the concerns of the residents in the area who noted various violations, infractions, law breaking, on the part of L&Q developers to the detriment of wildlife."

He added: "I believe there are reasons to be on the land, to observe rule breaking on the part of L&Q."

"It is equivalent to emergency services going on land that they do not own in order to investigate crimes."

Before adjourning the case, Judge Arnold asked for a list of persons who were happy to be named as defendants – making them liable for costs should their defence fail.

Following a lengthy discussion outside the courtroom, no resident attending the hearing was willing to put her/his name forward, so only the occupiers, Donovan Volk, Ana Rita Fernandes, Petra Albert, Philip Nichols, Mordechai Hamagid and Geoffrey Brand, have been listed as defendants.

Activist accuses workman of assault

AN environmental activist living on the site of the controversial Cat Hill housing development has accused a contractor of assaulting him as he tried to stop workmen entering the occupiers' camp.

Donovan Volk, who is one of the protesters fighting eviction proceedings from the former Middlesex University campus in Cockfosters, said he suffered a cut to his left ring finger after being hit with a spanner by an employee of housing association L&Q.

L&Q has confirmed that an incident took place, but denied that any member of its staff deliberately injured Mr Volk, who said the assault had happened on Monday morning as he tried to prevent site workers entering the area where trees are protected from any development.

He said: "I put my hand on the bracket holding the fence together and said, 'You're not coming in'."

Mr Volk said a workman jabbed at the bracket and his hand with a spanner, causing it to bleed "quite profusely".

Police were called to the scene and Mr Volk made a complaint of assault. However, no further action was taken.

An L&Q spokesman said: "Following an alleged incident, our contractor called the police, who have confirmed that they are taking no further action."

The Advertiser has contacted Enfield Police and was still waiting for a comment at the time of going to press.

A-level plans in place for deported student

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE Palmers Green student who was deported to her native country of Mauritius last month will be sitting her A-levels "in hiding" over the next three weeks, her former school has revealed.

Yashika Bageerathi, 19, formerly of Fox Lane, was removed from the UK after two botched deportation attempts and several weeks' stay in the Yarl's Wood detention centre in Bedfordshire, just weeks before she was due to take the exams at Oasis Academy Hadley, in South Street, Ponders End.

Yashika was deported alone after her claim for asylum in the UK was dealt with separately from her family – who remain in Palmers Green – after she turned 18 last year.

The Home Office refused several appeals for her to stay in the UK and ignored emotional pleas made by the Save Yashika campaign, which was led by her fellow pupils and received widespread media coverage.

But the teenager, who has been described by teachers as "a model student" and a "gifted mathematician", is determined to sit her A-levels in maths, further maths and science – and she will do so at a secret location on the island in the Indian Ocean, because of concerns over her safety.

Yashika had come to the UK in 2011 with her mother, brother and sister in what the school said was an attempt to escape violence from a drug-dealing relative.

Zoe Thompson, deputy principal at Oasis Hadley, which the student had attended since

Yashika is set to sit her exams at secret Mauritius location

2012, told the Advertiser: "Yashika is really worried about her future and misses her family and friends terribly."

"She has received death threats because there are a lot of people who feel that her case was anti-Mauritius. It's a small country."

"This is why we have kept out of the media for a while. We want her to complete her exams and then move her to a location where she is more safe."

"We are organising Yashika's A-levels in secret. We have support from the British Council and we are feeling quite positive about that."

In March, Yashika became the subject of a high-profile anti-deportation campaign, which received the backing of Enfield Southgate MP David Burrowes.

A petition calling on Home Secretary Theresa May to stop the deportation was signed by 183,755 people.

Dawn Long, British Council director in Mauritius, added: "We can confirm that Yashika has made arrangements through the British Council to take her A-level exams."

"Out of respect for her privacy, we can make no further comment."

IF Chancellor George Osborne can demand "real promises we can hold them to" when speaking about the Pfizer-AstraZeneca takeover bid, why can't we make the same plea to the Royal Free Hospital bosses seeking to take over Barnet and Chase Farm hospitals?

Pfizer sent a letter to Prime Minister David Cameron offering assurances about its future activities in Britain.

So why can't the Royal Free offer guarantees about its future activities at Chase Farm?

For weeks, dozens of MPs and media pundits have been poring over Pfizer's post-takeover ideas, so why haven't councillors and health scrutiny panels had the same open debate with the Royal Free?

These are two contrasting acquisitions. In the private sector, Pfizer's bid is openly discussed by the press and parliament and will ultimately be decided by shareholders and the financial markets. In the public sector, the Royal Free-BCF will be decided by Health Minister Jeremy Hunt, with no public documentation and no open consultation with the people of Enfield.

The Royal Free takeover is all cut and dried to start on July 1.

Forget the NHS slogans, "No decision about us, without us", "Everyone counts" and our "Duty of candour." The letter to Mr Hunt authorising the BCF "dissolution" is already written, just waiting for the rubber stamp by an NHS quango, the Trust Development Authority.

When Dr Tim Peachey, BCF interim chief executive, tells the staff at our two hospitals there are no proposals to change the delivery of services "at least in the short term", we are surely right to be alarmed by those words?

Attacks on councillors are totally unnecessary

IT is a shame that letters attacking councillors who are stepping down at the election are being given space in the Advertiser.

I simply couldn't understand the ones that were attacking Tom Waterhouse.

As a Chase ward resident, I am sorry to see Mr Waterhouse is stepping down. He is someone who is on the ball and very thorough when it comes to local issues. He is also very good at getting things sorted.

I also know, having met him at Nick Direct events hosted last year by MP Nick de Bois, that his views on the European Union, welfare and tax are knowledgeable and well thought through. I hope Mr Waterhouse will stand again for the council in Chase ward in the future.

But why anyone would put in those hours and attend all those meetings only to be open to unjust and unnecessary personal attacks in the press is beyond me. It is this kind of negative behaviour that turns people off politics.

□ I READ Simon Chamberlain's letter (Advertiser, April 30) to your paper and was somewhat surprised.

I differ from Mr Chamberlain in several respects.

Firstly, I haven't been a Conservative voter for 20 years. Secondly, I don't read the Daily Telegraph. And, finally, I have had no problem contacting Cllr Tom Waterhouse.

Indeed, when I have contacted him, he has proved himself to be an active and energetic representative of his ward residents' views.

I have no personal or political allegiance to Mr Waterhouse, but he has always been personable and conscientious when I have spoken to him – certainly not "a self-serving, career-minded candidate, not really up for the job".

Support: Tom Waterhouse

Mr Chamberlain is quite correct that actions speak louder than words – maybe he should stand as a councillor himself.

Richard Stoney

□ I READ with interest the responses to the article concerning Cllr Tom Waterhouse.

Two former councillors wrote in support of Mr Waterhouse, namely Annette Dreblow and Matthew Laban, but none of his current team of Conservative councillors supported him. Why not?

Mr Waterhouse is standing as a councillor in Jubilee ward.

I agree with another letter writer, Terry Hime, who said that if Mr Waterhouse was the Conservative group whip, why did he not ensure that people attended meetings?

Mr Waterhouse was not doing his basic job, so why give him a second chance?

Patience Oli

□ IT was interesting to read the letter from CR Courtney (Advertiser, May 7) as I can fully appreciate his frustration about the way voters are regarded by some councillors.

In January, and again in February, I wrote to Chris Bond, in his capacity as cabinet member for environment, regarding pavements repairs and the 20mph traffic restriction imposed in Hoppers Road, Winchmore Hill.

I wrote again on April 6, reminding him that I was still awaiting the courtesy of a response. I also enclosed copies of my letters from January and February.

It is now 119 days since I first wrote to Mr Bond, and despite reminders I have had no response.

Cycling scheme is premature

IT is difficult to understand, at a time of austerity and government cuts to council expenditure, how £30million of taxpayers' money can be found to finance a mini-Holland cycling scheme.

There is no guarantee that there will be an upsurge in cycling.

In fact, latest figures show a rise in car ownership.

At present, so few cyclists are seen across the borough that it is surprising that they have been given priority for expenditure of £30m.

By all means improve safety at roundabouts and road junctions, but a network of cycle lanes across the borough seems premature.

Ditch the UK

THE National Health Service could be the last thing that unites this country.

After introducing a privatisation programme, to then announce a Scottish referendum could be one of the most stupid things a Prime Minister has done.

Many of us would not mind London leaving the UK if it preserved the NHS.

Pens and paper going nowhere

WHILE waiting to be seen at Barclays Bank, in Enfield Town, I began reading the carefully printed matter on the display case, which read: "Here are some of our stationary aids available to customers".

Barclays obviously didn't learn the golden rule that stationary spelt with an "a" means something which does not move and stationary with an "e" means envelopes, pencils, paper etc.

I don't receive the obscene bonuses bankers do, but can at least be grateful for the good education my teachers afforded me. My English master would be turning in his grave if he saw this.

Treble the cost of licensing

RE: Jack Parasou's letter about the landlord licensing scheme (Advertiser, April 30). He is clearly not for the licensing scheme.

I would like to ask, did he work and buy his property? Does he live in an area where these properties are bought and rented out by landlords?

It seems that some of these people don't care who rents them, as long as the money comes in.

As for saying that laws are in place for antisocial behaviour, that is a joke as it takes months to deal with.

These people don't care how they behave or treat the area they live in.

Ideally, these landlords should never be allowed to buy and rent.

Treble the cost of licensing and fine them more for the trouble they cause homeowners.

OPINION

Did you see Moody Blues in concert?

THIS is the 50th anniversary of the formation of the mark one version of The Moody Blues – namely Denny Laine, Clint Warwick, Ray Thomas, Mike Pinder and Graeme Edge.

I am looking for stories about their appearances at the old Regal cinema in Upper Edmonton, or the Granada cinema in Lower Edmonton in 1964, 1965 and 1966 (one of which was a performance with Chuck Berry).

That was before Justin Hayward and John Lodge replaced the departing Clint Warwick and Denny Laine in 1966.

Did you go to any of the Moody Blues concerts around the time of Go Now! in 1964 or 1965? Do you have any photos, autographs, ticket stubs, programmes or anything connected with them during the period in question?

Were any reviews of their shows done in the old Edmonton or Tottenham Weekly Herald newspapers, or a pop music paper like Disc & Music Echo, Melody Maker, New Musical Express etc? And would you have kept a scrapbook of these performances?

If you do, may I please ask you to contact me by emailing VeteranCosmicRocker54@yahoo.co.uk I am not related to any Moody Blue past or present, and I am not a publisher or looking to print up anything I receive from you.

I do though want to share with other like-minded Moody Blues fans around the world on a couple of websites about them. Anything you can help with will get you a name credit only.

There are very few stories from these early Moody Blues years in terms of news, reviews, photos, programmes etc.

If you can help me fill the gaps from 1964 to 1966 in the Edmonton area specifically, and Enfield area generally, then I would be eternally grateful for any help.

As a lifelong Moody Blues fan, I thank you very much for any assistance, ideas, suggestions, recommendations about my small project.

Don't just dump your old mattresses

AFTER a couple of weeks of walking around my area, I have been astounded at how many people believe in the long-forgotten Mattress Fairy.

Some people still like to think that if they drag their ripped, stained, smelly old mattress into their road, then it will be magicked away.

The Mattress Fairy and her band of duvet dwarfs drive around the borough in a sparkly funk-up van scouring the streets for these discarded, unloved soft slabs of sleepy heaven, pick them up and take them to a special place called Divan Heaven, where they can live out the rest of their days.

And for those of us who don't believe in the Mattress Fairy, there is Barrowell Green Recycling Centre. There are numbers you can ring to have this stuff removed.

So, just because you can't get to the dump you don't have to live in one – or subject your neighbours to living in one either.

Asking questions: Healthwatch Enfield chief executive Lorna Reith

By Daniel O'Brien

daniel.obrien@nlhnews.co.uk

ENFORCEMENT action will be taken against Enfield's mental health trust after it failed to clean up its act over the way that it administers medication to patients.

Under-fire Barnet, Enfield and Haringey Mental Health Trust has been accused by the Care Quality Commission of failing its patients by not administering medicines safely.

An investigation by the health watchdog in March and published this month found prescription charts for a patient in Barnet that gave no record of whether medication had been administered, as well as inconsistencies about the supervision of medicine when handled by non-nursing staff.

Inspectors also found that Enfield teams did not always use lockable bags, while some medicines were found to be stored at incorrect temperatures.

Failings in the administration of medication had been flagged up previously during an inspection in September last year.

Lorna Reith, Healthwatch Enfield's chief executive, said there was a danger patients had been put at risk and the local watchdog would be asking for a meeting with managers.

She said: "There is clearly a serious problem with the level of management and supervision of staff within mental health community services provided by the trust.

"There is a real danger that people have been put at risk because of failures around medicine management and insufficient staff training.

"We will be requesting a meeting in order to hear what they are doing to address the issues in the CQC report and ensure that in future all services are delivered safely and appropriately."

Earlier this month the trust faced criticism after an investigation by the Health Service Journal revealed that it had spent more than £260,000 on discharging patients to bed and breakfast accommodation in just ten months.

A spokesman for the trust pointed out that the inspection revealed the majority of patients had received good care.

He added: "However, on this occasion the CQC found that in certain areas we were not reaching the consistently high standards which we always aim to achieve, which we accept and regret.

"We have taken immediate action to make sure that the problems identified by the CQC are addressed, so that patient care and safety are not compromised."

The trust has until June 3 to report to the inspectors with details of actions that it has taken.

Boarded up: The Hop Poles, on the corner of Lancaster Road and Baker Street

Last orders...for the time being

One pub is shut and near neighbour is sold to Co-op

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A PUB in north Enfield has been shut after the landlord failed to pay the bills.

The Hop Poles, on the corner of Baker Street and Lancaster Road, was boarded up earlier this month after the managers who had leased the pub ran into financial difficulty, leading the pub's energy supplier to cut the supply, Star Pubs and Bars, the chain which owns the boozer, has told the Advertiser.

A spokeswoman for the firm, which is owned by Heineken UK, said: "The pub was leased to an independent business person to run as their own. Unfortunately, due to their own financial difficulties, the electricity supply was recently cut off, which has meant the pub has had to close at short notice as it is without power."

"We are in the process of having power reinstalled and are also looking for a new lessee to take over the running of the pub."

The closure comes almost five months after the closure of The Hollybush, at the other end of Lancaster Road, at the junction with Chase Side, which was shut just after Christmas.

The building is now owned by the Co-operative, which is intending to convert it into a convenience store.

Hugh Fallon, who runs the Inn On The Green, in Green Lanes, Palmers Green, and is chairman of Palmers Green, Winchmore Hill and Southgate Pubwatch, a voluntary organisation made up of publicans aiming to promote a safe drinking environment, said that local pubs had come under increasing pressure due to supermarkets selling cheap alcohol.

"More people are drinking at home because of the cut-price cost of alcohol in supermarkets," he said. "Pubs just can't compete and we are also under pressure as a result of high business rates and alcohol duty."

"A minimum unit price would put things on a more even footing."

Star Pubs said it was unable to state when the Hop Poles would re-open.

A spokeswoman added: "We would like to apologise to the local community for its current closure. It is our intention to get the pub up and running again as soon as possible."

NEWSBank job accused in dock

AN Edmonton man will reappear in court next week, accused of robbing a central London bank.

Teslim Adedibu, 34, of Huntingdon Road, was arrested on May 13 on suspicion of robbing a branch of Barclays, in Regent Street, the previous day.

He appeared at Westminster Magistrates' Court last Wednesday and was remanded in custody to appear at Southwark Crown Court on Wednesday, May 28.

Murder trial jury retires

Court told of gang tensions before fatal shooting

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

Shot dead: Mohammed Hussein

THE jury in the retrial of a man accused of shooting dead a teenager in Edmonton started its deliberations yesterday.

Mohammed Hussein, 19, a member of the Get Money Gang, was shot dead with a sawn-off shotgun in the car park of Walbrook House, on an estate off Bounces Road, on April 1 last year.

He was shot almost exactly two years after Negus McClean, 15, of rival gang Dem Africans, had been stabbed to death just half a mile away.

Natneal Tesfay 21, of Park Road, Bowes Road, is being retried for murder after a jury in a trial at Kingston Crown Court was unable to reach a verdict in October last year

Three others – Christopher Aluma, 19, Simeon Birde, 19, and a 16-year-old who cannot be named for legal reasons – were all acquitted of killing the teenager after standing trial for murder in October.

Tesfay has always denied murdering Mohammed – who was linked with the GMG – as part of an postcode war between members of rival gangs Dem Africans, associated with Edmonton, and the GMG, from Enfield Lock.

At the beginning of the trial the jury was told that tensions between the two gangs had escalated at the time of Mr Hussein's death.

The court heard that four teenagers from the GMG, who were accused of Negus's murder, were due to stand trial at the Old Bailey just days after Mr Hussein was gunned down.

Woman's despair as husband switches hospital for dialysis

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A SICK man in urgent need of dialysis treatment had to witness a "shocking" argument between doctors and paramedics over where he should be treated, his wife has told the Advertiser.

Gerard Lamb was rushed to North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, by ambulance earlier this month with suspected pneumonia.

The 52-year-old, who suffers from diabetes, heart failure, kidney failure and arthritis, urgently needed dialysis treatment – the process of removing waste and excess water from the blood used by people suffering from kidney failure.

However, the dialysis unit, which is managed by the Royal Free Hospital, in Hampstead, had been shut the week before and moved to new premises in Daneland Walk, Tottenham Hale, which does not take inpatients.

Mr Lamb's wife Elizabeth, 45, who accompanied her husband, said: "I don't know why we were taken to the North Mid as the unit had been closed down."

"Upon arrival we were horrified when doctors at the North Mid ended up

Caught in the middle: Gerard Lamb and his wife Elizabeth having a heated argument with the paramedics over why they would not admit my husband.

"I could hear them arguing. I just felt physically sick and I could see Gerard suffering. In the end we went to the Royal Free and just about got there in time. He's in a bed there now."

The North Mid said it was "unaware" of any argument between an ambulance crew and doctors. A spokesman said: "It must have been very frustrating for the patient to be brought here and then moved to a different hospital."

"We no longer provide outpatient dialysis treatment on site, but continue to have the ability to provide renal dialysis if a patient with a life-threatening condition requires it."

"Other patients whose condition is stable and non-critical should be transferred directly to the Royal Free."

Mrs Lamb, of Tintern Road, Wood Green, added: "Doctors at the North Mid have saved his life on several occasions, but this debacle was just shocking. Before, we used to be able to get all the care in one place. They should have never closed the unit down there."

The Royal Free added that moving the service means more patients can receive dialysis and other kidney and diabetes services closer to their homes.

Award winner:
Kaye Wildman

Nursery's fight for outdoor play area rewarded

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A NURSERY owner who battled for the right of children to play outside, despite complaints from neighbours, has been awarded a major prize in praise of her efforts.

Kaye Wildman, from Nursery on the Green, in Chase Side, Enfield, was not given permanent planning permission for her charges to use the revamped outdoor play area until April – after battling against constant short-term solutions meted out by the council's planning committee.

Now she has seen the fortunes of the past year turned around when she was awarded the National Day Nurseries Association Award for Nursery of the Year (South) 2014.

A thrilled Kaye told the Advertiser that the award proved that the council made the best possible decision by granting a permanent right for the children to play outside.

"This is evidence that its support wasn't wasted," she said.

Kaye admitted that the past year had been difficult for her and her staff – "The past year has been tough," she said.

"There were some days when I did not want to go outside in case I saw one of the neighbours who had complained about the children."

However, she added that for her staff, this was proof they had been doing a good job for the kids, even during the protracted wrangling.

"The staff here do amazing work, but often they are not given the credit for it," Kaye said.

"This is a huge pat on the back for them. It is a way of the parents of the children saying, 'Well done!'"

The award will be presented to Kaye and her staff at a black tie gala in Manchester on June 19.

And she has pledged that they will "celebrate in style" to cap off a roller-coaster few months during which they have gone from uncertainty over the very future of the business, to gaining an outstanding Ofsted rating in September and permanent planning permission for the children to play outside.

"This has boosted staff morale no end," Kaye added.

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

Playwright Rachel knows all about fostering family

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A PLAYWRIGHT and director will be showcasing a special performance of her acclaimed first play at Chickenshed theatre this week.

Rachel Yates, an associate director of the Southgate-based theatre company, grew up in a family with two biological siblings and three long-term foster siblings.

After one of the foster children contacted her mother after a 20-year absence, Rachel felt she had to write something that would capture the highs and lows her own family had experienced.

First performed at Chickenshed last year, All I've Known has been produced across the country over the past 12 months.

Representatives from Enfield Council saw the play and were so impressed they have booked a special performance at Chickenshed, in Chase Side, on Friday – and entry will be free for any potential foster carers in the borough.

Drawing on her own experience as well as extensive interviews she conducted with foster parents and children, Rachel reveals that she is thrilled that the finished product has been embraced by local authorities as something of a recruitment tool.

When asked if she was worried her warts-and-all depiction of a foster family would put people off taking a child into their home, she said: "That's what is so wonderful – I didn't hold back – and people in the audience have been saying, 'This has shown me the truth and it still makes me want to do it'."

She admits she wanted to draw back the curtain on one of the issues that is rarely mentioned in discussions around fostering – how biological children respond to new, unrelated siblings who seem to land suddenly within the family, often reeling from emotional turbulence within their own biological family. "It is a huge hurdle to get across," added Rachel. "I wanted the audience to have the side of that – growing up with siblings.

"My parents had me and my brother and then took on three foster kids.

"And then my mum fell pregnant. So we went from being a family of two children to a family of six kids in the space of one year. That was challenging at the time, but we all survived."

Friday's performance starts at 11am.

COMPETITION

Win two tickets to ballet

FOLLOWING the huge success of Swan Lake, English National Ballet is returning to the Royal Albert Hall in 2014 with Romeo & Juliet – and we have five pairs of tickets to give away to lucky readers.

Derek Deane's in-the-round production, drenched in passion and tragedy with Prokofiev's evocative and powerful score at its heart, has been acclaimed by critics and audiences alike.

From the lavish masked ball that brings together the two rival families with dangerous consequences, to the seductive intimacy of forbidden love, no other ballet so intensely portrays Shakespeare's classic tragedy of star-cross'd lovers.

Set among the hustle and bustle, street fighting and rivalry of Renaissance Verona, with its decadent richness and grandeur, this magnificent staging is brought to life by a 120-strong company of dancers, actors and sword fighters.

To be in with a chance of winning a pair of tickets, send your details, including your name, address and a daytime phone number, to Romeo & Juliet competition, North London &

Herts Newspapers, 187 Baker Street, Enfield, EN1 3JT. Alternatively, email your contact details, to competitions@nlhnews.co.uk with Romeo & Juliet as the subject line.

The closing date for entries is Friday, May 30, 2014.

The winners' tickets are only valid for the 7.30pm performance on Friday, June 20, are subject to availability, non-transferable and are not for resale. There is no cash alternative and additional expenses are the responsibility of the prizewinner.

Romeo & Juliet is running at the Royal Albert Hall from June 11 to 22, 2014. To book tickets, call 020 7838 3100 or visit royalalberthall.com

Hitting the heights: Postman Pat

Pat the Movie falls very flat

POSTMAN PAT: THE MOVIE
(U, 87 minutes)

THE residents of the fictional village of Greendale are sitting on the secret to eternal youth.

Trusty postman Pat Clifton has been doing the rounds with his black and white cat Jess since September 1991 – and during those 23 years, he doesn't appear to have aged a day.

Alas, screenwriters Kim Fuller, Annika Bluhm and Nicole Dubuc didn't take a refreshing swig from Greendale's rejuvenating water supply before they penned the lifeless and shambolic script to Pat's computer-animated big screen debut.

Postman Pat: The Movie is a shadow of the beloved stop-motion TV series, exploring the poisonous effects of celebrity on the mild-mannered postie when he enters in a televised singing contest.

Postman Pat (voiced by Stephen Mangan) is at the heart of village life in Greendale, where he lives in Forge Cottage with his wife Sara (Susan Duerden) and football-mad son Julian (Sandra Teles).

Sara has always dreamt of going to Italy, so when Pat discovers a trip for two is the top prize in the TV reality show You're The One hosted by Simon Cowbell (Robin Atkin Downes), he prepares to belt out a ballad.

"Think of it as singing in the shower," Julian tells his father, "but in front of lots of people... and with your clothes on."

Against the odds, Pat's audition charms the usually stony-faced Cowbell.

Within days, Pat has become a nationwide celebrity and he gets caught up in the media hoopla, which takes him far away from his loved ones and his job at the Special Delivery Service.

In Pat's absence, SDS efficiency expert Edwin Carbunkle (Peter Woodward) plots to replace all of the human staff with robot doppelgangers.

Meanwhile, the grand final of You're The One beckons and Pat prepares to compete against teenage singer Josh (Rupert Grint) and his pushy father (David Tennant).

Postman Pat: The Movie is a second-class delivery of a hackneyed plot.

Animation throughout is competent and the handful of gags pitched at snoozing adults, like the screen display of a robotic Jess which reads Faster Pussybot Kill Kill, barely warrant a weary smile.

Pat by name, pat by nature.

Mum leads walk for charity that helped after the loss of two babies

ROB BOURNE

A MOTHER who lost two babies during infancy held the first-ever Mile in Memory walk at Forty Hall last weekend.

Nicola Bird, of Meyer Green, Enfield, was devastated when she lost her son Edward Joseph Churcher to sudden infant death syndrome in September 2011 when he was just four weeks and five days old.

"He came along to complete our family and all of a sudden was gone," said the 36-year-old. "We woke up one dreadful morning and he, our beautiful baby boy, didn't. I cannot describe the unimaginable pain of losing a baby, and nor do I want to – there are just no words."

Reeling from the shock, but needing to find a way to be strong to support their four other children, Nicola and her partner Nick Churcher turned to The Lullaby Trust.

They were able to talk to other parents who had suffered loss – but as they started to rebuild their lives, tragedy struck again.

They lost their daughter Emily May Churcher in May 2012 after she was born prematurely.

Again the family received support from the charity – and when Nicola fell pregnant again some months later, the trust came into its own with its Care of Unique Infant scheme.

"They provided us with everything to put our minds at rest," Nicola explained. "They provided sleep monitors, your own set of scales and a dedicated health visitor, who visits for as long as you feel you need support. Our minds were put at ease so much."

The mum-of-five wants to do everything in her power to raise money for the charity that has helped her and her family survive such turbulent years – and when she saw that the nearest Mile in Memory walk was in south London, she decided to organise an event closer to home.

A group gathered at Forty Hall, in Forty Hill, Enfield, on Saturday morning and walked through the grounds to Hilly Fields. The event has generated £400 for the charity.

"It went really well," Nicola said. "It was a fair turnout for the first time. We are going to make it an annual walk and hopefully organise music at the bandstand to make it more of an event."

Ten shows on offer at kids' theatre festival

By Jack Wilkinson

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

CHILDREN of all ages will have the chance to experience some exciting theatre productions over half-term, with ten shows being performed at the Dugdale Centre.

The Skewbald Children's Theatre Festival is running at the venue in London Road, Enfield Town from Sunday until June 1, offering a chance to sample some of the finest productions from across the country.

Hayley Byfield, artistic director of resident production company Skewbald, told the Advertiser: "There will be a range of shows for those aged three to six and shows directed to older age groups.

"The festival is about offering our regular customers and audiences something a little bit different as well as inviting new audiences.

"We wanted to provide a more varied programme of performances for our strong family audience, which is why we brought in companies which specialise in children's theatre."

The festival will feature ten productions, with Monty and Mirabella's

The Little Things, A Little Bit Productions' A Little of Dickens and Another Way Theatre's The Wabbit King among the shows on offer.

"The centre will be revamped," Hayley added. "There will be exciting games for both children and parents to play, so I hope the centre will be heaving for the duration of the festival."

The fun will start with a children's favourite, The Lighthouse Keeper's Cat, and the festival finishes with Skewbald's production of enchanting fairytale The Frog Prince, with the audience invited to venture deep into the world of the story.

"We will turn the theatre into a pond as we look to examine the unexplored aspects of the story," said Hayley.

"We are going to show them a world they do not usually see."

Shows begin at 11am and run through until late afternoon.

Tickets cost £10 for adults and £8 for children, with a £1 saving for online bookings.

For more information, including the festival's schedule, and to book, visit www.dugdalecentre.co.uk or call 020 8807 6680.

METROPOLIS SURVEYORS WIN COVETED AWARD

Metropolis Surveyors, the professional surveying arm of Kings Group were delighted to receive the Award for Best Surveyor at the 2014 Mortgage Strategy Awards last week.

The Awards ceremony was held again at the prestigious Grosvenor House hotel in Central London, with almost 1000 guests from the Mortgage and Finance Industry. This was the largest event in the last several years, which is testimony to the recovering property and mortgage market.

Despite being shortlisted in the category, Metropolis were up against some stiff competition, but to win this accolade is a huge achievement for the business, which is now recognised as the one of the key independent surveying businesses in the market.

The awards are judged by key industry personnel and the criteria for winning is tough, so having been shortlisted for the last 3 years, it was tremendous to finally win.

Speaking after picking up the Award, Jeff Wilson, Commercial Director said, "I am thrilled to have picked this up on behalf of all the team at Metropolis, who have made a tremendous effort in delivering excellent service to our clients in what have been some very difficult trading conditions over the past few years. This has never been about the destination but about the journey, and we have had to adapt, change, and do whatever was necessary to not only compete with the big national firms, but also ensure we deliver a second to none service. This is an important award for us as it is one of the key events of the year and recognised as a significant milestone for any business associated with the Mortgage and Finance Industry."

In addition to winning the Award, Metropolis also sponsored the Best Buy to Let Lender Award which this year went to BM Solutions, part of Lloyds Banking Group, and a key business partner of Metropolis.

Property tips

Light, neutral tones tend to make rooms look bigger and brighter. This is accentuated if you use a small palette of colours throughout the house, rather than switching between completely different shades in different rooms.

Outlander makes sense

By Iain Dooley

WHILE Mitsubishi's latest Outlander offers a pleasingly revised and refined ownership experience, this model is a little different as it is a plug-in hybrid variant.

Mitsubishi might not have the same track record as others when it comes to hybrid motoring, but this Outlander hits the ground running – boasting 100-mile-plus fuel economy figures and ultra low CO2 ratings.

Mitsubishi has opted for a petrol-electric set-up, which is claimed to offer high levels of refinement along with the low running costs associated with petrol motoring.

The two-litre engine and two electric motors – one at each end – drive the Outlander.

All-wheel drive performance is retained, despite the absence of a propshaft, while it can automatically channel power.

A press of a button transforms this Outlander into a surprisingly capable 4x4, proving no less able than its diesel-powered stablemates. Inside, there is space for five in the practical cabin. The hybrid hardware has resulted in the removal of the regular car's third row of seats, but the upshot is a flat, wide load space.

The Outlander's streamlined exterior is a welcome change to the usual rough and rugged theme demonstrated by many rivals – and this approach makes the Outlander a slippery beast, which should help with its overall economy performance.

Famous more for purposeful off-roaders and turbo-nutter rally replicas, Mitsubishi doesn't have much of a track record when it comes to alternatively fuelled transport. Thankfully, the engineers in Japan have caught up with European manufacturers and the Outlander PHEV is an accomplished first attempt.

The cabin is spacious and practical and there is ample oddments storage space, head and legroom fore and aft, plus the previously mentioned wide, flat load space. The durable but classy cabin materials should easily resist the rigours of family life, while the powered tailgate is a nice, practical touch.

The hybrid Outlander behaves a lot like a regular model, although the quiet running on electric power is a giveaway. It is an easy car to drive, irrespective of the power source in use, and the beauty of the hybrid is that it takes care of everything, whatever the road conditions.

You almost don't need to touch the brake pedal, a useful characteristic for urban driving, although it does take a bit of getting used to.

Plug-in hybrids aren't cheap, but Mitsubishi has pegged the price to that of the comparable diesel-powered model. There's a small line-up boasting good to generous levels of kit, while the main attraction for business users will be the tax efficient properties – low running costs, zero congestion charge rating and the ability to offset the car's cost against business activities.

Factor in the potential to commute on electric power alone and charge up on low-cost electricity, and the hybrid Outlander starts to make sense.

Skolars are undone by pair of late tries

THE London Skolars began life at their new temporary home in Enfield in disappointing fashion on Sunday as they were beaten 34-24 by the Gloucester All Golds in rugby league's Kingstone Press Championship One.

Playing at the Queen Elizabeth Stadium for the first time while work takes place to upgrade the New River Stadium, the Skolars looked set to win when they took the lead with 12 minutes remaining – but the visitors scored two late tries to emerge victorious.

"We had good territorial advantage, but didn't convert that into tries," said head coach Joe Mbu. "We lost the ball in their half numerous times and no side can make those sort of mistakes and expect to win."

The visitors struck first through a Daniel Spencer-Tonks try, but the Skolars hit back and took the lead as Dennis Tuffour touched down for a try which Sam Druce converted.

But tries from Aiden Jenkins, Jason Muranka and Casey Canterbury helped the All Golds to move 18-12 ahead by the interval, with Martyn Smith replying with a converted try for the hosts.

A Muranka try extended the visitors' lead, but the Skolars responded well and reduced their deficit through a Mike Worrincy try before James Woodburn-Hall's 68th-minute try put them ahead.

However, the All Golds finished the match much the stronger and an Izaak Duffy try put them back in front before Canterbury's second try of the match sealed their victory.

The London Skolars are without a match this weekend.

Staying put: Emmanuel Adebayor expects to still be at Tottenham Hotspur next season

Borough fail in bid to claim silverware

HARINGEY BOROUGH fell short in their bid to end their season on a high by winning some silverware as they were beaten 1-0 by Hullbridge Sports in the final of the Gordon Brasted Memorial Trophy.

Borough went into last Tuesday's match on the back of a 23-match unbeaten run, but injuries and work commitments forced them to field a below-strength side – and they were further disrupted by traffic problems which meant that two of their intended starting line-up did not arrive at the ground until after the kick-off, which was delayed by 25 minutes.

Despite the problems, Borough played some attractive football in the first half, but they fell behind when a series of uncharacteristically sloppy defensive errors gifted Hullbridge what proved to be the only goal of the game.

Nick Nicou had earlier gone close for Borough with a hooked shot that narrowly cleared the bar, while Richard Worrell was denied an equaliser prior to the interval by a stunning save from Hullbridge keeper Bobby Mason.

However, the second half saw Borough produce a below-par display as they struggled to break down a determined Hullbridge side – showing a distinct lack of imagination as they launched a succession of long balls towards the penalty area.

Haringey did create a couple of late half-chances to get back on level terms, but Dean Fenton headed wide and Dwayne Clarke saw his shot from a difficult angle hit the side netting as they were beaten.

STRIKER STAYING

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

STRIKER Emmanuel Adebayor insists that he wants to stay at Tottenham Hotspur after enjoying an impressive second half to the season.

Adebayor had been frozen out of the side by Andre Villas-Boas but was recalled when Tim Sherwood – who was axed as head coach last week – took charge in December.

The striker responded by scoring 14 goals in 25 appearances, and he has revealed that he has no intention of moving on over the summer.

"I will be a Tottenham player," he said. "I have got two years left on my contract."

"But what happens if I wake up and what has happened to me in the past has happened again? What if the chairman called me and if the new manager says about moving me on, what do you want me to do? But it is like I said. At the moment I can't consider going anywhere."

Meanwhile, Sherwood has admitted that he would not have taken the job at Spurs if he had known that he would only be given five months in charge.

Sherwood signed an 18-month contract, but it included a break clause at the end of the season which chairman Daniel Levy chose to activate following their sixth-placed finish in the Premier League.

"I love the development phase of football, and if I knew it was a five-month job I would not have done it," he said. "I thought that if I had 18 months there I would definitely have taken the club forward."

"At the beginning of the season the aim was to be in the top four, and it always is for Tottenham."

"But when you actually analyse the season, taking out Gareth Bale with 21 goals, Jermain Defoe with ten Premier League goals and Clint Dempsey with seven and replacing that with a very good goal-scorer in Roberto Soldado who had never played in the competition before and six other players who'd never played in the competition before, realistically the expectations of finishing in the top four were far too great."

"To actually finish on 69 points, just one win short of our record number of points of 72, which we finished with the season before, without one of the best players in the world in Bale wasn't a bad season."
